

The School of Slamwich

was originally setup by the university bridge society to bring our new players into teams bridge. We have now taken the team to try and climb the league and try to better ourselves instead. Our team has 4 main members:

Rocky Bullin is a graduand at the University of Manchester. He studies Music and plays the piano to a high level. He aims to become a teacher in the future.

Peter Chua is a 3rd year undergraduate studying medicine. Next year he is starting his experience in a hospital from 9 to 5 every weekday, which will leave him with less time to play but we hope to still progress with him.

Josh Clarke used to study Economics and History but dropped out towards the end of his degree. He is currently doing work in renovating a house.

Henry Bissell, captain, is a mathematics graduate at the University of Manchester. He is still searching for a more permanent job but is taking more responsibilities at the Manchester bridge club in the meantime.

Lots of our team currently help out at the Manchester bridge club, working during the evening duplicates and even running our own on Friday afternoons. We are very passionate about bridge and look forward to our new opponents and opportunities in division 6.
