

How did you get started playing bridge?

When I met Rodney (Journalist note: Rodney Lighthill is Eve's husband of many years, not to be confused with Rodney Lighton, our hardworking webmaster) I was an innocent 18 year old.

He had just come down from university having spent most of the previous year playing bridge. If I wanted to see him I had to go with him when he played with his friends.

I was allowed to play the dummy when someone went to the loo, gradually I was playing the odd hand.

Were there any memorable hands?

The first hand he opened 1 Spade and I raised to 2 Spades.

I had 6 points with the singleton Ace of Spades which I thought was a lovely card.

When he told me off I hit him over the head with my handbag!

How did you continue?

I graduated to play at the Central Bridge Club playing rubber at a shilling a hundred.

My mentors were Frank Wood and Stan Zychlinski.

Frank played 12 to 13 and a half no trump with 14/16 rebid.

On my first league team was Irving Blakey but when Joy came along he only had eyes for her.

You served as Chairman of MCBA for many years - what were the best and worst parts?

The best part of being Chairman was, with Kevin's help, bringing back the Manchester Congress. It was great to see everyone together, friends from different parts of the area that I don't see very often.

The worst was the (Names deleted). (Journalists note: Eve names a now deceased married couple who caused trouble for her during her tenure as chair of MCBA)

Did you ever play against anyone famous?

Twice I played against Omar Sharif. He had the most gorgeous very dark, almost black eyes. I could have stared at him forever.

He had a plaster over one eyebrow and when I asked him what he'd done he said he'd walked into the bathroom cabinet !!

Who do you play with regularly?

I have several regular partners including Barbara Lewis, Ann Super, Sid Travers, Howard Kay and of course Raymond and I enjoy playing with them all.

Did you and Rodney ever travel anywhere nice and play bridge?

We travelled quite extensively in America but it was on a trip to Madeira where we agreed to play bridge after dinner with an elderly couple from Yorkshire called Albert and Betty.

Albert opened the bidding. I bid. Betty thought for ages and passed. Rodney supported me and Albert bid game.

Betty put down a very healthy 11 count. As play proceeded Albert had about 12 points.

When I mentioned that he'd bid on his partner's hesitation, he said of course he had, how else would he have known she had something ?!!

We didn't play with them again. (Journalist note: probably for the best)

What will you do when all this is over and life returns to normal?

The first thing I'll do when this is over is to invite my family for dinner and give them all individually a massive cuddle or three.

The next day I'll go back to Manchester Bridge Club which is my second home.
